

Marty Sullaway, NN1C

Marty is a 20-year-old radio aficionado living in Eastern Massachusetts. He can be found on the bands in most major US and domestic radiosport contests. Marty has been extremely fortunate to have had the opportunity to pilot many larger contest stations, both as a single operator and as part of multi-operator teams. Marty is an amateur radio club speaker, podcast guest, and advisor and has been published in The National Contest Journal as well as CQ Magazine, and various other media channels. When he isn't at the radio, Marty is an Electrical and Computer Engineering student at Northeastern University while simultaneously working in the defense industry.

In recent years, Marty has operated stations such as ZF1A, W1KM, KC1XX, K3LR, K1LZ, K1VR, and K1IR in many different contest events. Marty will be a North American team leader at WRTC 2023 and holds several USA single-op and DX multi-op records. He is tri-modal, enjoying digital, CW, and SSB operations, and is a proud life member of CWOps, #2276.
